Godfrey Hirst Australia

Carpet manufacturer Godfrey Hirst Australia has introduced a number of sustainability practices over the last seven years to minimise the impact of operations on the environment and create an efficient and environmentally responsible manufacturing process.

Many initiatives have been introduced to reduce, re-use and recycle; including a water treatment plant that is industry-best practice in effluent recycling and stormwater harvesting.

It's sustainability practices have helped reduce emissions by 45%, measured per metre of carpet, and delivered a 50% drop in water consumption so far.
